BIOGRAPHY:

Entrusted with the gifts of art, writing and reading expressively I grew up in Maryland displaying these talents early on in home VHS tapes, including fourth grade landing a lead role as a convincing Queen Isabella in the Columbus Day play.

I involved myself in high school theatre productions such as "Father Knows Best" also hospitality as a camper and waitress at a long standing relationship with Mount Hermon Conference Center in Santa Cruz, CA where I also recieved a local newspaper recognition for my art at Scott's Valley Library, also co-designing aspects Messiah College's 2003-2004 production "The Lion, The Witch & The Wardrobe's" costumes using both what what the school had available and designing masks for the cast.

I studied in California fine art to film, making the dean' accreditation at San Jose City and excelling in a media law class where both teacher and students voted my wildlife documentary presentation as top quality. I also obtained a required GED for entrance in to the art trade school, which led me into entrepreneurship. I desire still to make nature films. I have now produced a gorgeous illustrated collection of poetry I have written inspired by trust in the Everlasting Love and inspiring Salvation featured this past year on two major radio stations, and with new podcasts both inquiring and being inquired. I aim to produce a second illustrated poetry book and have a medieval historical romance story in development as a trilogy.
